Aquanaut Drifter 1150 Special (low clearance height)

This 2004 Aquanaut Drifter 1150 multi-hull combines solid construction with a beechwood interior and a practical layout. With a clearance height of 2.45 m when all surfaces are lowered, this boat is ideally suited for cruising on inland waterways and under low bridges. The boat is powered by a 106 hp Vetus Deutz engine and is equipped with both a bow and stern thruster, which significantly facilitates maneuvering in tight harbors and at mooring spots.

The foredeck features a guest cabin with a spacious V-berth, a cozy dinette, and a compact, well-equipped galley. The salon offers a comfortable sofa and plenty of cabinet and storage space, ensuring that longer stays on board remain pleasant and organized. In the aft section, the sanitary facilities are practically separated: a separate toilet area with a sink and a separate shower room, with a sink and washing machine, ensure comfort and privacy. The owner's cabin is spacious and features a freestanding bed and plenty of closet space.

The aft deck is finished with Marinedeck and features a fully enclosable tent, allowing you to enjoy the outdoors even in changing weather conditions. Since there are no fixed benches on the aft deck, the deck offers great flexibility: you can arrange chairs and seating areas to your liking and make the most of the space. In short, the Aquanaut Drifter 1150 is a robust, comfortable, and versatile motor yacht for those who value practical layout and cruising comfort.
