Aquanaut Privilege 1200

Aquanaut Privilege 1200

This cozy Aquanaut Privilege 1200 immediately stands out thanks to its characteristic curves, a hallmark of the Aquanaut Privilege series, and the many stainless steel details that give the entire motor yacht a well-maintained appearance. The wide gangways and the very spacious aft deck, which can be completely enclosed with a tent and provides access to the swimming platform via a fixed staircase, make the ship extremely practical and inviting. The powerful 135 hp Perkins diesel engine provides reliable propulsion, while bow and stern thrusters facilitate maneuvering; the electrically retractable stainless steel mast and a minimum clearance height of 2.45 meters also make the yacht suitable for many sailing areas.

At the front is a spacious and cozy round seating area, directly adjacent to the galley, which has granite worktops on both sides. The saloon has a comfortable U-shaped seating area and offers good visibility to the outside, while the bronze-tinted double glazing also retains heat and ensures privacy. The engine is located under the saloon floor and is accessible via an electrically operated hatch, which makes maintenance and inspection easy. Opposite the sofa is a wall of cupboards with a neatly concealed TV that can be raised at the touch of a button via a TV lift.

The aft section features a neat bathroom with an electric toilet, washbasin, and shower cubicle. The owner's cabin has a freestanding bed with plenty of cupboard space on both sides. The aft section also houses the separate guest cabin with standing room and a spacious bunk bed. The entire interior is finished in warm cherry wood, giving the yacht an attractive and high-quality appearance.

All in all, this is a very spacious and well-designed motor yacht, with the stern in particular cleverly designed for comfort and ease of use.
