The Grouwster vlet has a warm, inviting appearance; the teak gleams throughout, and the gentle curves lend the interior a cozy atmosphere. In the foredeck is the owner's cabin, featuring a generous queen-size bed, spacious wardrobes, and comfortable benches on either side that make getting in and out easier—a very comfortable cabin.

The galley is practical and neatly appointed with a four-burner gas stove, a refrigerator, a spacious countertop, and plenty of cabinet space; opposite is the neat, spacious bathroom with a vanity, toilet, and a separate shower stall. The salon features a spacious leather-upholstered sofa. The sofa easily converts into a double bed, allowing guests to stay overnight in comfort. The helm station is fully equipped with comprehensive navigation equipment, alongside a passenger bench with a chart table and a wall of cabinets for items such as a television and books.

Through the four wooden French doors, you step directly into the open cockpit; when the doors are open, a single large, bright space is created where the interior and exterior blend seamlessly. The self-draining cockpit is fully teak-clad and features a spacious U-shaped bench with storage, while the storage compartment under the floor offers ample space for items such as folding bicycles. Wide teak gangways surround the vessel, featuring a stainless steel railing finished with teak handrails at cockpit level.

The Grouwstervlet 1200 OK exudes luxury and is equipped with a powerful 128 hp Vetus Deutz engine, bow and stern thrusters for effortless maneuvering, and an electrically retractable mast that makes sailing even more comfortable and ensures excellent stability.
