Rob 900

The Rob 900 has a multi-chine hull with a length of 9.60 meters (including swimming platform), a width of 3.70 meters, a draft of 0.85 meters and a crawl height (with lowered antenna bracket) of 2.40 meters. These dimensions make many smaller waterways accessible.

The Rob is laid out as follows: in the bow is the owner's cabin, with a spacious freestanding bed. There is plenty of storage space under the bed, which is foldable. On the port side you will find the bathroom with a sink, an electric toilet and shower possibility. To starboard is a double guest cabin. Via two steps we enter the saloon with a large U-shaped sofa with (fold-out) table on the starboard side. To port side is the steering gear with a clear dashboard, with the galley directly behind it. This is equipped with a worktop, refrigerator, sink and 2-burner diesel ceramic stove. Underneath the teak floor is the engine which is easily accessible for daily inspection and maintenance. The saloon has many ventilation options; Among other things, because of the 2 sliding windows in the sides and the two doors, which lead to the open cockpit.

The open cockpit is spacious, self-draining, has a second steering position (where you have a good view) and in good weather offers a good alternative to steering inside. Against the mirror of the Rob 900 are 2 comfortable sofas with storage space and there is also plenty of storage space under the floor. There are also 2 lockable cabinets, one of which houses the shore connection and the associated cables. A mirrored door leads to the swimming platform, which is equipped with a folding swimming ladder and bollards. On deck, the Rob is equipped with well-established gangways with a safe high stainless steel railing, stainless steel bollards and a windlass.

The Rob 900 with less than 10 meters, is a surprisingly spacious motorboat of which many of the points on many a wish list can be crossed off.
